

Two Lanes through Afghanistan is a book that talks about the research findings of two students who went to Afghanistan to study the road connectivity there. Using a personal narrative style, this book not only informs the readers about road connectivity in Afghanistan but also gives a personal account of the student's interactions with the people of this country. In conversations that ranged from the common people of Afghanistan to its elite, this book gives a first hand account of how road connectivity has changed the people's lives.

Acknowledgements

The journey and adventure that we experienced in Afghanistan could not have been possible without the cooperation of a few people whom we would like to thank.

We would like to begin with by thanking Dr. Raghav Sharma, Assistant Dean of Jindal School of International Affairs and the director of Center for Afghanistan Studies at the O.P Jindal Global University for arranging our visit to Afghanistan.

We would like to thank Mr. Mujahid Aminzai and Mr. Ahmadullah Archiwal for arranging our stay, food, transport and interviews while we were in Afghanistan.

We would like to thank our companions in the guest house we were put up in. They took care of us and made us their family. They are, Fida Muhammad, Hajji Basheer Muhammad and Zeenat Ullah Zeenat. They talked to us everyday to make sure we didn't get bored. We would also like to thank Abdullah and Syed Muhammad for making our stay very comfortable as they were the managers of the guest house. We would also like to thank Shamran, our cook, who worked tirelessly day and night to give us the best of Afghan cuisine.

We would like to thank the people who we in-interviewed for this book for taking out time from their busy schedule to answer our curiosity.

We would like to thank our friends for their support and love. Their constant motivation kept us on track to finish writing this book.

Lastly, we would like to thank our families for their support and most importantly, their permission to send us to Afghanistan.

Thank You All!
